The WOMEN Centre has assembled a team. Because no one person has all the answers.

As respected as our gynaecologic oncologist is, he’s no sex therapist. Our obstetricians and gynaecologists are skilled at delivering babies, but can’t coax mothers with postnatal challenges to bond with theirs.

Part of being a great doctor or health professional is realising when you need to call on the support of others, to ensure your patient’s total wellbeing.

When you refer a patient to the WOMEN Centre, you’re making sure she will be cared for physically and mentally by a team.

She can draw on as many, or as few, of our services as she needs. For cancer patients especially, this holistic Survivorship model is considered best practice and has been shown to improve quality of life.

Each recommended treatment will be tailored to suit the individual patient, and referring medical practitioner/specialist will be duly informed and involved in the follow-up care of patients.

Our experience has taught us that the benefits of integrated care extend to every stage of a woman’s life.

To further enhance positive patient experience, our administration team provides high standard of service – anticipating needs and coordinating appointments.

Whether it’s endometriosis, pregnancy or menopause, we don’t just manage the condition – we treat the whole person.

The team at the WOMEN Centre takes a truly collaborative and integrated approach to patient care in order to ensure the best outcome possible and patients regaining their quality of life after treatment.
